THE WORLD DO MOVE.

SAYS THIS CORRESPONDENT

Kingston, N. Y., Sept. 12, 1933.

Editor Daily Freeman:

Who is this keen "Observer" who has noticed that the universe has not changed much for the last few centuries? Of course, he is right. It means what he says, and perhaps it shall not change very much during the next few million centuries. But since the subject of his writing, as printed in your paper of September 12, is so trivial, he probably just means the twining humanity upon old mother earth, especially their habits and customs. Who else will say that there is not much change? Where do they burn witches today? Where are the torture chambers? Where is there absolute slavery in any civilized country? Two hundred years ago the machine-age had not been born. Where was the electric light, the telegraph and telephone, the railroad, the steamboat, the automobile, the airplane, the radio, the public schools, etc.? Does "Observer" believe that all these material conveniences and a better education failed to have any influence upon the habits and customs of the world's population?

Perhaps it is convenient to close one's eyes to these facts, and perhaps still more convenient to use facts distorted to drive home an argument one does not have to reveal.

And there you are, worrying that they may make a game for themselves. They deserve it, Mr. Observer, they were the first to go over the top and we should build monuments for them, not of marble or granite, but of gratitude and reverence right in our hearts. That is, if we are patriots.
